CONFESSED SLAYER OF RISSIE DAY FILES PETITION FOR A NEW TRIAL

Earl Ray Perkins, one of two young men who pleaded guilty to murdering Mrs. Rissie Steele Day at her home near West Liberty last January 17 petitioned the Morgan Circuit Court this week to vacate his life imprisonment sentence of May 14 and grant him a new trial.

The petition was mailed from Eddyville where Perkins now is serving sentence, and was received by County Attorney Thomas Davis Monday. The petition has been filed with Circuit Court Clerk Walter Franklin and will be passed on by the Circuit Judge.

The 12-page petition, prepared by a prison lawyer, sets out that the petitioner was a pauper and without funds to employ counsel, and alleges that the court-appointed counsel was ineffective, particularly because he did not file for a change of venue and did not apprise him of his rights of appeal from the conviction.

Also he charges illegal search and seizure without a search warrant and that he was denied counsel at several interrogations, also that he "endured harsh beatings" during the interrogations, and that he was placed in solitary confinement before the trial.

CHANDLER SAYS HE'S WINNING, AND WILL RUN OUT RACE FOR GOVERNOR

Scorns Opponents For Stealing His Platform Planks

By Clay Wade Bailey

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Kentucky's most colorful political figure of the century, A. B. (Happy) Chandler, Versailles, an inveterate optimist, told members of the Frankfort Optimist Club that he was better qualified by "education, training and experience" for the governorship than any of his opponents.

He heaped scorn upon the heads of Democratic and Republican gubernatorial nominees, Wendell H. Ford and Tom Emberton, for "attempts to steal my platform on both the sales tax and suggestions that a special session be called to repeal the tax on food."

"I was preaching repeal of the tax on food eight months ago," he said "long before Tom Emberton suggested he favored it. And I suggested at Fancy Farm a month ago . . . that these fellows put the tax on you, let them call a special session and take it off."

"Then a week ago, Ford, who remained silent on the issue at Fancy Farm and berated efforts of others asking its repeal, suddenly tells the State Chamber of Commerce that the governor should call a special session to remove the tax immediately."

"Both these fellows had a hand in imposing this tax on the people of Kentucky," said Chandler. "The 1969 three per cent tax imposed under Bert Combs' administration with Wendell Ford assisting, and when Gov. Nunn increased it in 1968 to five per cent, Tom Emberton was aiding and abetting the operation."

"These fellows have both been stealing portions of my platform after testing the political winds and finding it popular, but it's not an original thought by either."

He reiterated that he favored a presidential primary next year for selection of Republican and Democratic presidential candidates, but declared "neither of these fellows will grab that as an issue."

"Mr. Emberton is too closely identified with Gov. Nunn to permit anything that conceivably might not be in President Nixon's interest," he said. "And Lt. Gov. Ford will have no part of this as he would be in the pocket of the man from Mississippi, J. R. Miller, Democratic state chairman) should he become Governor."

"And your humble servant has no one in mind except the people. Let them speak and have their voices heard. I have been favored letting them have a voice in all things such as selection of candidates. My record proves this as far back as 1935 when I called a special session that set in motion a mandatory primary election law for

STATE PLUMBING CODE ENACTED COUNTY-WIDE BY HEALTH BOARD

The Morgan County Board of Health at its meeting at the Health Department Monday night enacted the State Plumbing Code for Morgan County, to become effective immediately.

According to Morgan County Sanitary Engineer Walter Blevins, enactment of the code means that all new plumbing installed in Morgan County must comply with standards specified in the State Code.

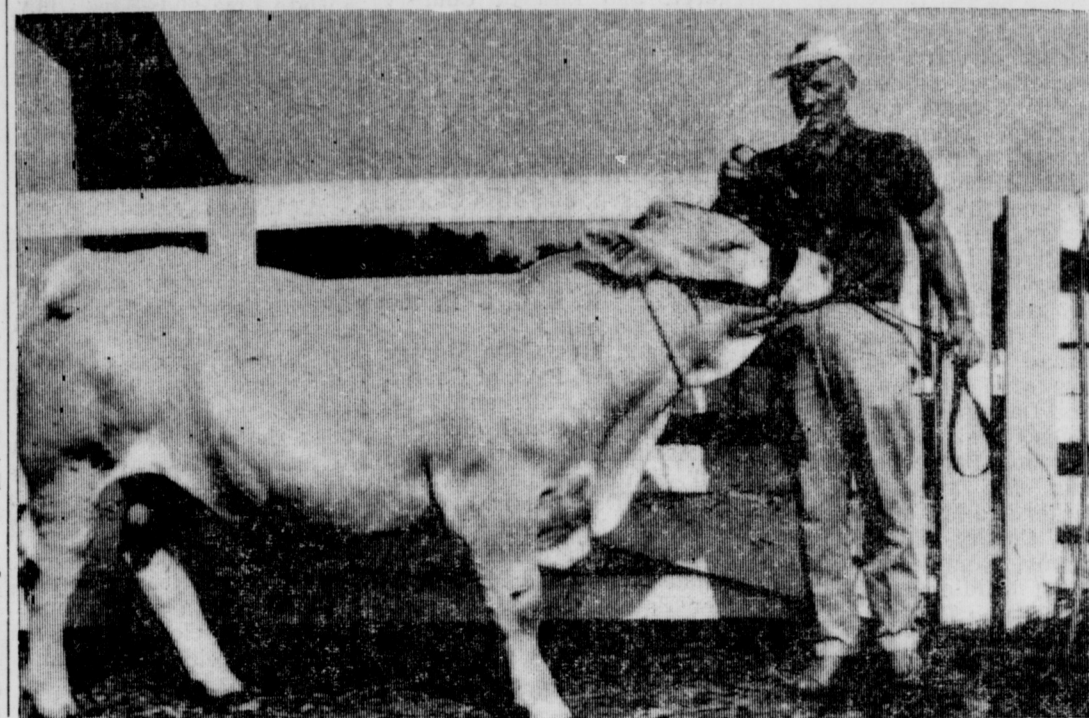

This means that all new residences and buildings must have adequate sanitary disposal systems for sewage. All remodeling which includes installation of new bathrooms also must comply with the code.

All new plumbing hereafter must be inspected and approved by a state inspector and failure to comply with the requirements of the code can bring fines of not less than $10 nor more than $100 for each day the violation of the code continues.

The code is designed to prevent the dumping of raw sewage into streams and to prevent spread of disease by making properly installed sanitary sewage disposal systems mandatory throughout the county.

4 Prisoners Are Removed To Campton As Repairs Start

The Morgan County jail, condemned for months by state and local health officials, was closed for 30 days Monday for remodeling.

Morgan County jailer Clarence Litteral said five prisoners were released from the jail Monday and four were transferred to the Wolfe County jail at Campton as workers began correcting unsanitary conditions in the upstairs cell area.

Morgan County Judge Eugene Allen said the county has agreed to provide material for remodeling the jail and labor is donated through an anti-poverty program in Morehead.

Allen said plumbing trainees from the program began replacing broken lines to provide hot and cold running water to the prisoners' area. Later, he said, the cellblock's toilets will be made operational and the jail will be painted and furnished with new bedding.

"We feel that the jail was no worse than any other jails," Allen said, commenting on recent jail publicity. "But it is in bad shape."

The temporary closing of the jail followed by one day a Courier-Journal story detailing conditions there after a prisoner made complaints in letters to Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford and the Newspaper.

Until the decision to close the jail, prisoners spent their days without running water and flushed two broken toilets each morning with water from a garden hose attached to kitchen faucets.

The jail's unsanitary plumbing and bedding have been under attack for years by local grand juries and in recent months have been condemned by health authorities who ordered the jail brought up to health standards or closed.

Various closure orders had been extended, however, while county officials awaited approval of a federal grant for a new city-county building and jail.

By Astor Barker
Barker Reunion

Aug. 23 — Sunday, Aug. 15, the descendants and relatives of Hiram F. and Irene Allen Barker held their annual reunion at Caney with some new faces present and some missing that had attended in the past.

Traveling the greatest distance for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Evans and daughters of Country Club Hills, Ill.

The young folks busied themselves with horseshoes, checkers and other games while the older folks talked about events of days gone by.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Barker came from Virginia in the early 1800's and settled on Grassy Creek where their children were born, Buckley, Polk, and Hiram F.

OBITUARY

McGUIRE

Phoebe Lykins McGuire, daughter of the late Eli Lykins and Lydia Brown Lykins Elam, was born Oct. 6, 1877, and on Aug. 14, 1971 the light beamed out from beyond Jordan, to guide her quietly and peacefully to her Eternal rest at the age of 93 years, 10 months and 8 days. She was the last survivor of a pioneer Lykins family.

On Jan. 25, 1900, she was united in Marriage to J. I. McGuire, who preceded her in death December 7, 1942.

To this union were born 7 children, Lydia Cecil, deceased, Orpha Hamilton, Cottle, Alma Nickell and Clinton McGuire, Louisville, Otis McGuire, Plymouth, Michigan, and Hobert McGuire, Louisville, with whom she made her home.

She also reared two stepchildren who she loved as her very own — Kelly McGuire, Fort Bragg, California, and Lula Hasty, Los Angeles, California.

Early in life, she realized the need of a loving Savior to guide and sustain her in her earthly pilgrimage. She was converted and baptized, and throughout her long life, her great desire was to walk with the Lord and to witness for Him in every capacity of life.

She was a life long member of the Bethany Church of Christ.

On the road of life, she encountered hardships. She was left an orphan at age 14. There her education ended, and she went out among friends and neighbors to earn a meager income, to help support her mother and younger brothers and sisters.

Later in life, she and her good companion toiled hard to support a large family.

When sickness struck in the community one of the first things neighbors did was call "Aunt Phoebe."

She went to their rescue, day or night. She often filled the place of the country doctor.

But with all of her cares, she loved life. She was jolly and alert to her very last years.

Her leadership and diplomacy has been a guiding force, that sustained not only her family but to the many friends to whom she endeared herself, both here and the 25 years she lived in Louisville.

Besides the above named children and stepchildren, she leaves 28 grandchildren, 32 great-grandchildren, and 3 great-great-grandchildren to mourn her passing.

And now, that for her the long journey has ended, may the wonderful life that was hers, continue to radiate and live on, in the lives of all those to whom she was so precious. (Pd.)

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our deepest and most sincere thanks and appreciation to all who helped in so many ways during the death and funeral of our loving mother, Phoebe McGuire.

To all who brought food and sent flowers, those who opened and closed the grave, all who visited with the family at the funeral home or helped in any way.

To Brother Jimmy Adkins, who read the obituary and offered prayer; to Brother Alaska Marshall and Brother Charlie Frederick for their words of comfort and condolence, to the singers for their beautiful songs, and the Herald and Stewart Funeral Home for their kind and efficient services.

May God richly bless you all as our prayers.

CHANDLER...

governor and other state officials.

Chandler reminisced awhile about his past experiences in the governor's chair, promised that if again chosen he would devote himself to these goals:

Reorganize the state government again "like we did before in cutting down the number of bureaus . . . get the state debt under orderly controls . . . prepare a state budget that meets the needs of the state sufficiently . . . and reduce the price of automobile tags from $12.50 to $5 a year again.

"When I left the government here 12 years ago, the government's credit then was the fourth best in the nation," he said. "Now after 12 years we are fourth from the bottom.

"And all we are being promised by some other fellows is debts, taxes and the promise of more of the same," he said.

He also promised another effort to remove the state tax from real estate in the hope that a changed Court of Appeals would give a different construction to a constitutional provision which was construed in 1936 as making mandatory a state tax on real estate.

"Once that tax is removed by the state, local governments could then be freed from the threat of assessment increases, roll-backs, rollups and these revenue boys in Frankfort playing havoc with the budgets of all local governments."

Chandler is 73. "But I'm in fine health, and I'm winning," he tells his audiences. He then reminds them Winston Churchill was regarded a failure at 65 . . . but came back in his 70's and saved the British empire in its greatest hour of peril. Charles de Gaulle was the French hero at a still older age. Lloyd George was in his eighties. Chancellor Adenauer was in his 80's, and Strindberg was still making violins at 96," Chandler asserts.

Chandler tells his audiences also that he feels voters now are "thinking more and more about individuals and less about party affiliations. Then he cites Mayor Lindsey of New York and Senator Byrd of Virginia who were elected as independents.

Chandler admits he only gave himself a slim chance of winning when he filed to run last spring. "Oh, but things have changed. I think I'm already winning, because the tide has turned."

Why does Chandler think he is winning?

"Because my opponents are weak candidates, and because the Democrats are split beyond recall — and they have been ever since the primary," he asserts.

"Labor is out on a limb, too, in this election and doesn't seem to like either Ford or Emberton. That's why I think I'm ahead with the grass roots. It's going to be a wonderful upset for these other fellows," he says.

OBITUARY RUSSELL

Francis Marion Russell, son of the late Samuel F. Russell and Beth Lou Steele Russell; was born at Stillwater in Wolfe County, Kentucky, on August 26, 1911. After taking seriously ill at home on August 20, 1971 at about 2:30 o'clock, he was rushed to the St. Claire Medical Center at Morehead where he died undergoing a Cardiotom test at 4:45 o'clock, from a heart attack, lacking only 5 days living three score years.

After the death of his mother, he, his sister, Edna and his brother Charles made their home with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Steele on Nickel Fork of Grassy Creek. He then was a small boy of about 5 years of age. While spending his boyhood there, he attended the Rural schools at Centerville, completing the 8th Grade.

He was married to Miss Katherine Carter, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Milburn Carter of Paris Crossing, Indiana, on September 3, 1938 when he was 27 years of age. Born to them were three children, 1 daughter, Evelyn, and 2 sons, Leon and Joseph C. all of Grassy Creek. Joseph C. is still at home.

He was converted and joined the Centerville Enterprise Baptist Church where he remained a member. He loved to attend church services, here and elsewhere. In his later years, almost every church time, at The Enterprise Baptist Church at Grassy Lick, his seat was filled, there he gave his attention to the message taught.

He loved to dwell in his cottage on his farm but at heart, he was a thriving merchant. This vocation fitted in well with his peasant-like farming where he devoted attention to his wife and family.

Surviving him are his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Williams, his son, Leon Russell and his youngest son, Joseph C. Russell all of Grassy Creek. His 3 sisters, Mrs. Edna Gibbs of Grassy Creek, Mrs. Minnie Lowe and Mrs. Nannie Lowe, both of Midletown, Ohio; 2 brothers, Charles Russell, Grassy Creek and James Russell of North-east Pennsylvania, 3 precious grandchildren, a number of relatives and friends who will miss his vacancy on earth, at home and at his grocery store, located on Route 1, West Liberty, Kentucky.

Funeral Services were conducted August 23, at 1 o'clock p.m. at the Grassy Lick Enterprise Baptist Church with Rev. Ellis Hamilton and Rev. Bruce Daniel officiating.

Singing rendered by Mrs. Dorothy Elam, Mrs. Mabel Barker, Mrs. Irma Gevedon and Mr. Darrell Barker. Obsequies written and read by Mrs. Elsie Lacy. Prayer offered by Rev. Russell Brown. Arrangements by Herald and Stewart Funeral Home, Pallbearers: Edward Elam, Marcus Gevedon, Jr., J. C. Russell, Frank Elbert Gevedon, Phillip Kennard and Marcus Gevedon, Sr. Burial in the Grassy Lick Cemetery. (pd.)

NUNN ASSAILS FORD'S PLAN TO REMOVE FOOD TAX IMMEDIATELY

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Gov. Louie B. Nunn called Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford's challenge to the governor to call a special session of the General Assembly to remove immediately the sales tax on food "ridiculous."

Nunn said Ford's suggestion was a "political blunder" and the most irresponsible suggestion that any candidate for governor ever made.

Ford's suggestion had come in response to a promise made by his Republican opponent for governor, Tom Emberton, that if elected he would seek removal of the sales tax on food and seek a severance tax on minerals to help make up the loss in revenue.

To cut the current "delicately balanced" budget at this time by removing the sales tax on food would be to "wrench on a commitment to the people and the federal government."

Nunn said, noting that funds in the current budget are earmarked for programs already underway, including some programs that involve federal matching funds.

"To talk about changing it in five days is the most ridiculous thing I ever heard," said Nunn, who also charged that Lt. Gov. Ford "has no understanding of the complex fiscal mechanism of the state budget."

Ford had estimated that a special session to remove the food tax and impose a severance tax would last no more than five days.

EMBERTON'S ENVIRONMENTAL PLANK AIDS WILD RIVERS, CITIZEN SUITS

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Republican gubernatorial nominee Tom Emberton yesterday outlined his environment — protection platform, including a pledge to support state legislation to protect wild rivers and to facilitate citizen suits against polluters.

Access to courts stressed
On the subject of wild rivers legislation, Emberton said: "Our remaining unpolluted streams are few. In an effort to save them, I will support a wild rivers bill in the next General Assembly which maximizes efforts to preserve natural conditions while at the same time takes into full account property values and the rights of the individual land owner."

Emberton said he would also support legislation to make it easier for individual citizens to file suit against pollution sources or against governmental agencies that are lax in enforcing anti-pollution laws and regulations. He said the proposed legislation would give "all citizens" direct access to our courts so that they can participate in the efforts to cleanse our environment.

Other points in Emberton's environment platform:

• Establishment of a state Department of the Environment.

• Creation of a "pollution strike force" in the office of the state attorney general with "several full-time lawyers who would specialize in pollution abatement."

• Enforcement of the "strictest possible water-quality standards."

• Increased fines "for those caught littering our roadsides and countryside."

• Committing state government "to total use of recycled paper wherever possible."

• Outlawing strip mining in places "where reclamation is not possible."

• Planning rapid-transit systems "for our densely populated counties."

• Opposing "indiscriminate clear-cutting (a logging practice) in any of our national forests in Kentucky."

Emberton also called on all other gubernatorial candidates "to join me in a voluntary ban on any campaign billboard that violates the spirit of our high-way beautification programs."

After the news conference, Emberton's stand was endorsed by H. A. Ritchie, president of the Kentucky Conservation Council, and Wayne Davis, a University of Kentucky professor and ecology advocate.

The commerce group had championed the sales tax in 1956 as the best method of raising state revenue. The group also asked for more vocational schools in the state, and reaffirmed its stand for Daylight Saving Time as required by the federal act.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Licking Valley Courier

Another year has rolled around and here is my check for $11.00 for the renewal of the paper for myself and also for my brother, Mr. Frank Haney, Shelby Gap, Ky.

My husband and I don't get to come back to old Morgan as often as we did in the past. In fact he has been ailing to the point he just had major surgery the 19th of this month. He is improving nicely now, so keep our news line still coming.

We have been a subscriber for almost thirty years. We appreciate it more than ever now.

CATALOG ROLL-BACKS

Two mail order houses—J. C. Penny and Sears Roebuck — already had their new catalogs printed when President Nixon ordered a freeze of prices, wages and rents. But the two companies said this week they would lower prices to conform to the freeze. Penny will have about 350 gift items affected by the rollback, it said. The rollbacks will be contained in a printed statement inserted in the gift catalogs.

BROWN-FOREMAN BUYS

The Internal Revenue Service has a provision that provides if a going business sells out for more money than its assets, the business does not have to pay taxes on the capital gain. Last week Barton Brands, Inc., a distilling and importing company of whiskeys, with sales of over $100 million, decided to sell out. The buyer is Brown-Foreman Distillers Corp. of Louisville, which is paying $34 million for the concern whose net worth is not more than $28 million. Barton Brands has distilleries in Kentucky (Very Old Barton), Canada and Scotland.

MUSHROOMS FROM CAVES

Mushrooms are delicate and costly food, but its a big business. Three years ago Jonathan Shaw, a British mushroom grower, saw possibilities of growing mushrooms in abandoned limestone mines in Carter County, Ky., and started growing them in the caves. He got a loan of $375,000 from the Kentucky Industrial Development Finance Authority and expanded the business, known as Kentucky Mushroom Farms, Inc. Last week he got another loan of $199,800, with which to expand the business and add more workers. Shaw claims the expansion will add about $1 million in payrolls by 1974. Abandoned mines and caves near Lawton are ideal for growing mushrooms because of darkness, temperature and humidity inside the caves. Shaw's mushroom farm is one of the biggest in America, but Pennsylvania still produces more mushrooms than any other state.

FLOATING MONEY

After President Nixon suspended the gold standard and set the dollar afloat on world exchanges, Japan tried for two weeks to hold its yen to the old parity of 360 to the dollar. But the pressure became too strong last Saturday and Japan's Foreign Ministry Saturday announced it too had set its yen afloat on world exchanges. The yen jumped 5 percent the first day in relation to the dollar. Now Japanese goods will not be so cheap in America.

TOLLS DON'T PAY THE BILL

Toll collections on Kentucky's tollroads don't come close to paying toll-road revenue bonds as they become due. During the fiscal year ending June 3, 1973, only 34 percent of toll-road revenue bond debts for the same period. As a result, the difference had to be paid out of the regular road fund.

OBSERVATIONS AND PREDICTIONS

MASONIC HISTORY — "A History of Freemasonry in Kentucky" is being written by Charles Guthrie of Burkesville, and he hopes to have the book ready in time for the 175th Anniversary of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky next year. He welcomes news and history of early lodges and early Masons in the state, also photos.

WOLFE COUNTY PROJECT — The Kentucky River Area Development Council at a meeting in Hazard last week approved a grant of $30,000 to conduct a county-wide recreation program in Wolfe County. The council also voted to retain Malcolm Holiday as director, and he subsequently withdrew his resignation from the $16,500 a year job. The Council recommended that the associate degree in nursing be established at Hazard Community College.

SOCRATES SAID — "If all our misfortunes were laid in one common heap whence everyone must take an equal portion, most people would be content to take their own and depart."

Kiwanis Board Plans Programs For Month

Board of Directors of the West Liberty Kiwanis Club met Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Franklin and prepared programs for the month of September.

Planned for the meeting on Sept. 15 is an address by James Templeton, new director of the Gateway Development Council, who will discuss the programs and work of his agency.

Also planned is a talk by the director of the Appalachian Regional Hospitals Inc., which will operate the new West Liberty area hospital.

PRICE FREEZE WORKS

This price freeze works like this — if the manufacturer (processor) marks it too high, and the wholesaler or food depot follows with a higher price to the stores; and the retail outlet advance the price accordingly, then all three are guilty. So they obviously must watch each other. And, the housewife is the good spy and informant to get the whole ball of wax rolling.

Democrat Solons Polled On 'No-Pay' Special Session

FRANKFORT, Ky. — State Senator William Sullivan of Henderson, a supporter of Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford for governor, is polling Democratic legislators to determine if they would serve in a special session without pay.

Sullivan said the poll was to determine whether legislators would serve if Gov. Louie B. Nunn would call a special session to remove the five-cent sales tax on food for home consumption.

Ford had called on Gov. Nunn last week to call a special legislative session immediately to remove the food tax. Nunn countered with a charge that Ford's proposal was irresponsible and ridiculous since it would leave the state with an unbalanced budget and endanger programs already underway.

Republican gubernatorial candidate Tom Emberton earlier had pledged to remove the sales tax on food if elected governor in November.

ODDS & ENDS

BY EARL KINNER, JR

This is Fair Week in Morgan County and prize garden products and field crop specimens grown by Morgan farmers are on display at the RECC Fairgrounds at Malone. We don't know if Delbert Guehl, above, of Greaser is displaying any of his potatoes at the fair or not. He should. Delbert who believes in planting by the signs, planted 100 lb of potatoes in May and was proud enough of his crop that he consented to pose for a picture. He holds a 2 lb. sample of his potato crop.

Autobiography Of Morgan Native

A former Lee City man, Rev. Paul D. Miller, pastor of the United Methodist Church, Peabody, Kansas, and a former resident of Lick River, writes —
"I was born on Cook Branch at Lee City, Ky. My parents are Carl and Rhoda Dunn Miller. I thought you might be interested in learning that I have collaborated with an author, Mrs. Esther Lowen Vogt of Hillsboro, Kansas, in writing a biographical book of my life, entitled "I'll Walk Again," which is being released by the Herald Press of Scottsdale, Pa. in May of 1972.
"The story starts with my birth, my life in the slums of Dayton, Ohio, my Navy career, completion of college without having gone to high school, my pastoral ministry in the Methodist Church, and an accident that left me partially paralyzed. At first, doctors said that I would not live. Then they said that I would never talk or walk again. God intervened and I recovered enough to carry on a full time ministry, serving 400 members."

Rev. Miller credits Miss Madge Carter, who was a missionary at Lee City, with instilling in him an interest in becoming a minister, and he gives an account of this in his book. Miss Carter now lives at Pomeroyton.
Rev. Miller's address is Paul D. Miller, 502 N. Sycamore, Peabody, Kansas.

Courier Fixture For 60 Years Gone
After years of disuse and being neglected, an aged fixture of this newspaper played out its last week, probably marking the end of an era or something at The Courier office. At any rate, a vague, unspoken sense of loss pervades our plant this week.
The old handed Babcock newspaper press — upon which thousands of editions of this newspaper were printed between 1910 and 1966 — is gone. It occupied marked room only by an ugly oily spot on the floor. A shovel and numerous scrubbers by Dave Link have failed to erase it. The spot remains, a vaguely sad reminder to all the older Courier hands of an earlier, simpler era, of the implacable march of time, and inevitability of its denting place in the mind of a line from Shakespeare: "Out, damned spot, out!" Cantankerous and unpredictable, cursed and maligned by printers — some of whose names now embellish graveyard stones — the old Babcock for more than half a century was the mechanical heart of this newspaper. However, since being retired after installation of a new press a few years ago, it had served no useful purpose and had taken up needed floor space. Though delayed as long as possible, its removal was inevitable.
During its long life, it received a few kind words — not because it was unappreciated (after all it earned the bread and butter), but because Courier printers learned from experience that to brag on it was to court disaster. (Never, but never, brag on a piece of machinery is the motto around this printshop: for as sure as you do it will go kaffoey, usually right when you need it the most.)
The Babcock was no exception. Some people will tell you that a printing press is just a machine, incapable of human emotion. Courier printers whose job it was to run and maintain the Babcock will tell you differently. "That press," they will tell you — and their obvious affection for it paradoxically rings through — "was surely the most malevolent melange of nuts and bolts and synchroized gears ever fashioned by human hand."

But given adequate care and properly cussed, it printed countless hundreds of thousands of papers during its long career.
Just how many Couriers have come off that old press during its lifetime?

Under present ownership alone, roughly 2,860,000 Couriers were printed on the Babcock between 1944 and 1966 when it was retired after installation of a modern automatic press. Since 1910, when Wallace Caraway started The Courier, roughly 6 million copies of the Courier were printed on the Babcock. These figures do not include the two other papers — The Elliott County News and The Wolfe County News — which the present management has printed in The Courier shop for a number of years.

Anyway, it's gone, and the nature of its demise was enough to make a printer cry. It's probably just as well that the publisher of this newspaper, and its longtime shop foreman, Charlie Goble, (who together during the past 25 years have around 1,044 editions of The Courier to press on the Babcock) were not present Saturday when the junkman came to take it away.

As it was, this country printer who learned newspapering handfeeding the Babcock, acquired a deep aversion (unfair and totally unreasonable, to be sure) to anything connected with the scrap metal business. Within a matter of hours, the Babcock, object of so much careful care and attention for so many, many years, was torn asunder before our eyes and beaten to smithereens with a sledge hammer wielded by a man whose only conception of its value was in dollars and cents per so many hundreds pounds of metal.

It was enough to make a printer cry, and if Dave Link doesn't get that damned spot off the floor soon . . .

That thing up above isn't a turnip. It's an onion, grown in the garden of Jim Wells, formerly of Menifee County, now a foreman at NCR in Dayton, Ohio. Darrell Williams, formerly of Florres, Morgan County, who works in Wells' department at NCR, reports that Wells is probably one of the hardest Republicans ever to come out of Menifee County and proud of it. As proof, Williams, a Democrat, said Wells told him he'd just brought in the ones he could carry and had to leave the big ones in the ground because he couldn't get anybody to help him carry them in. Darrell'd dad, Vinson Williams, said he didn't know many Democrats who could tell a bigger one than that.
